

NO CONDUCTOR TO SIGNAL.

Must Have Fallen Off Car Unconscious—Picked Up Unconscious.

When a New York and Queens trolley car reached College Point from Flushing early this morning a passenger rose to signal the conductor to have the car stopped. There was no conductor in sight. The car was run back over the route, but there was no sign of the conductor. With the aid of an inspector the run was finished, and when the car returned to Flushing it was found that John Flynn, the conductor, had reached the Flushing Hospital. A trolley car going from College Point to Flushing, which passed Flynn on the way, found him lying unconscious beside the tracks, and he was carried to Flushing. Apparently he had fallen off the platform of his car and landed on his head. He is unconscious and it is thought his injuries may prove fatal.
